

Call for papers InDialog 3

ENPSIT is delighted to announce that the international InDialog Conference series will be continuing under its auspices from 2019. InDialog 3 will be held in Antwerp on 21-22 November 2019 and hosted jointly by the University of Antwerp and KU Leuven Antwerp campus.

Theme: Interpreter Practice, Research and Training: the Impact of Context

Continuing the initiative of the past two conferences in the series, InDialog 3 will deal with dialogue interpreting in its many forms. The conference focuses on the impact of different contexts on the way dialogue interpreting unfolds in practice and how this phenomenon is being researched and addressed in (higher) education and training.

Context is to be understood in a broad sense. Not only does it refer to those dialogue interpreting contexts that may be perceived as the usual suspects, such as institutional health care, legal interpreting and the diverse contexts of public service interpreting more generally. ENPSIT particularly wishes to invite contributions examining dialogue interpreting in other scenarios such as conflict situations, refugee camps, war zones and various other ad hoc interpreting settings. A further aspect will be the potential impact of unusual circumstances on so-called normal working settings and conditions in today's globalized society. Interpreters are required to deal with the unexpected and cope with a range of challenges as a matter of course. InDialog 3 will provide a forum to examine how we are dealing with these challenges as practitioners, researchers and trainers.

Formats:

We are inviting proposals for individual papers (15 minutes + 5 minutes for questions), posters and panels (with up to five speakers). The conveners of panels will be responsible for chairing the panel, for its theme, which must fall within the conference theme, and for the expertise of the speakers they invite.

Topics:

We invite contributions related to the impact that the varied and diversifying contexts in which interpreters work may have on their performance, their well-being, the adequacy of their skills and training, as well as their sense of professionalism, the application of ethical codes and, ultimately, the quality of the interpreted encounter as a whole. We would like contributions to deal with these issues within the following interpreting domains, however, the list is not exhaustive:

- interpreting in zones of crisis and war
- interpreting in legal settings
- interpreting in asylum settings
- interpreting in healthcare settings

- interpreting in education settings
- interpreting and new technologies
- evidence-based interpreter education
- interdisciplinarity in interpreter research
- interprofessionalism in interpreting practice
- interprofessionalism in interpreter education
- new technologies in interpreter training
- new research methodologies in Interpreting Studies
- interpreting and language rights
- ethics in interpreting
- ...
